Hurled a Book at Him.

A scene not on the bills was acted at Oxford, Miss., Thur-day, when Senatorial candidates Gorman and Barksdale were advertised to speak. Senator George was not present, but sent his lieutentant, ex-Conpresent, but sent his lieutentant, ex-Oongressman Money, now of Washington, who is stumping the State, to meet Barksdale.
In his speech Col. Money crowded Barkdale, about his vote while in Congress against the Guif and Ship Island forfetture bill. Replying, Barksdale said that Money had a land-grant record worth talking about; that when ex Salator Lamar and others were advocating the construction of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, Col. Money, a memoer of Congress, advocated the rival project, the Huntington scheme, and that it was after-Huntington scheme, and that it was after-ward adopted; that Huntington, who was ward adopted; that Huntington, who was not a money-lender, accommodated Mr. Money with a large loan. At this Mr. Money knquired of Msj Barkedels If he intended to charge that the loan was in consideration of his support of the measure.

Mr. Representation of the adopted the sideration of his employed of the admitted the Mej Barksdale inquired if he admitted that transaction. Col. Money replied that he did, and that he would denounce any man as a liar who would charge that he supports a chief that he income to obtain the liam. ed the measure in order to obtain the loan. Thereupon Maj. Batks lale hurled a book and struck Money, who was on the rostrum. Col. Money was accompanied by friends out of the courthouse and Maj. Barkedale con-tinued his speech until his time had expired. After the speaking the difficulty was amica bly settled by the interposition of mutual friends. The Oxford row proves that the Senatorial contest in Mississippi is getting very bitter and interesting.
